In 2010, Chenrong, who attended music class, injured her hands before taking the piano exam. She was so sad. After she heard her father's voice through an international call, with her father's encouragement and own strong willpower, she completed therapy and hand rehabilitation within one month. The doctor praised her efforts because the therapy usually took about half year to finish.

Whenever Chenrong and Chenfang went out with their father, they found Tai a kind person. People who came across Tai are also pleased to talk with him.

The day before the Double Ten National Day in 2011, Chenrong asked her father a question about life, "Why do people all say that life is valuable?"

Tai replied, "Because everyone has only one life. If one loses his or her life, he or she will lose all hope and opportunity. One should therefore cherish his or her life." Chenrong said, "Then I will make a lot of money when I grow up."

Tai replied, "We should not only cherish our lives, but also avoid doing anything to make our family worried. We should think about how to make our lives more meaningful. Not only making money, but also we should think about how to help others. Taking the grandmother Chen Shu Ju from Taitung for example, she only made a little bit of money but donated what she has to those in need. Her charitable character was recognised and was selected as the 'Charity Hero' in Asia by Asian Forbes magazine. Daddy hopes that you can find a goal that is more valuable than making money in your life."

Chenrong asked, "Daddy, you expand the CMA to 20 countries and regions. So you know how to make a lot of money." Tai replied, "Because I have made more effort than others. I'm also very thrifty, so I can control the spending. I therefore can afford your education." Chenrong said, "I will also learn the way of studying, work and financial management from father." Tai replied, "Chenrong is very intelligent. The industry of education won't make too much money."

If someone can make money from it, that means he or she knows how to save money and manage finances ”.

Tai is not the kind of father who forces his children to study, but Tai will spend all his effort to reach his targets and become an example for his children. When Weicheng was in the eighth grade, he often went to the cybercafé with friends, and his school performance started lagging behind. When Tai found out, he said to his son, “I’ll go to the cybercafé with you.” Weicheng then felt sorry and stopped going to the cybercafé. When Weicheng was a ninth grader, on an occasion, he didn’t get a good grade in an exam, and hid his report card. Mrs. Tai was very angry when she found out. However, Tai gently told him, “Don’t worry. Try your best again next time, and face it with bravery.” Weicheng’s behaviour and school performance improved afterwards. On another occasion, Chenrong didn’t feel good and told Tai, “I don’t want to attend the tuition centre.” Tai surprisingly said, “OK then...let’s go to see a movie?” Tai continued, “Then you can withdraw from the school to help me expand my career.” Chenrong then laughed and felt better. Since Tai’s school performance was not good when he was young, he didn’t ask too much of his children’s school performance, but only requested his children to firstly, build a good foundation in abacus mental arithmetic; and secondly, to keep a healthy lifestyle and find their own expertise to develop their potential. The three children contrarily would urge themselves to study and learn other skills spontaneously.
